It is interesting to know that in certain circumstances Queen Alexanidra is assumed to be a single woman. This is in case of legal proceedings. As everybody knows, the law takes a very different view of married women and a femme sole which means wither spinster or widow in the old Morman-French law jargon As a single woman, Queen Alexandra can purchase and convey land, hold leases, and do many other useful things without His Majesty's concursence. To aid her in her legal work Her Majesty has the power of apsointing her own Attorney-General and Bolicitor-General, though this privilege has not been exercised during the present reign.

The Queen can be tried only by the House of Poors, as was Queen Caroline, of unhappy memory. But, enless expressly exempted by law. lays: fare, only $300 in gold." This was the heading of an old handtill, yellow with age, which a traveler laid upon the counter in a railway ticket office the other day. It was an advertisement of a line of stagecoaches that ran from Atchison, Kan, to San Prancisco during the gold excitement of years ago.

"People seldom stop to think what their poor ancestors had to put up with in the old days," the man saki. He was comparing the old time table, with a modern railway time table, which told of the luxuries one could have by traveling on that road, no dust, no jarring and all other disagreeable features climinated.

The old time table was a double sheet of paper, torn and yellow with age. It was issued by the Atchison and California stagecoach line in 1857. The inducements it held forth were in strange contrast with those of the modern railroad advertisement. The stagecoach line advertised that it had recently refurnished the entire "road" with absolutely new wagonettes, and It told what kind of coaches they were, bow the springs were made and of what strength they were. It even said that the coaches vere painted in the that drew the coaches were described,

An inducement that was beld out on the time table to prospective passesgers was a stop over privilege.

"Passengers who had paid their entire fare from Atchison or other points to their destination," the paper said. "may register with our agents. A stop over privilege is then given for any place on the road."

The most laughable duel ever "fought" in France was that which took place in November, 1878, at Pleasis-Piquet between Messra Gambetta and De Fourtou.

Some heated words had passed between the two distinguished gentlemen in the chamber of deputies, for which. according to their ideas of honor, nothing could atone except a duel. The men met therefore on the field attended by their seconds and the surgeons.

A look over the field was enough to convince any one present that there would be no occasion for the doctors' pervices. .A thick November fog hung over the scene-so thick, indeed, that one could hardly see his hand before his face. The arrangements for the at thirty-five paces.

Nor was the fog the only circumstance that tended to place the combatants out of sight of each other. On the way to the field M. de Fourtou is reported to have said:

"M. Gambetta has but one eye, and I am shortsighted, so the game will be about even."

It was, of course, rendered still more "even" by the fog. Neither man could see the other, and the sole danger was these stubborn and dangerous distronto. to the seconds and the doctors.

Almost miraculously the two bullets that were exclarged missed the persons in attendance. Everybody's honor was satisfied and the whole party in the dark as anything be ever saw.

> The Smell of the Dawn. Of all hours of the day there is none like the early morning for downright good odors-the morning before eating. Fresh from sleep and unclogged with food a man's senses cut like knives. The whole world comes in upon him. A still morning is best, for the mists and the moisture seem to retain the odors which they have distilled through the night. Upon a breezy morning one is likely to get a single predominant odor, as of clover when the wind blows across a hayfield or of apple blossoms when the wind comes through the orchard, but upon a perfectly still morning it is wonderful how the odors arrange themselves in upright strata, so that one walking passes through them as from room to room in a marvelous temple of fragrance.

Text of the Lesson, Es. ziv, 13-27. Momery Verses, 18, 14-Golden Text. Ez. ziv. 30-Commentary Presered by Rev. D. M. Steerns.

[Copyright, 1987, by American Press Association.] The lesson today opens with a word we always need, "Fear not," and from fort there is in this oft repeated message! God has not given to His peoilege to serve Him without fear all the days of our life (II Tim. I. 1-7; Luke L 74, 75).

By strength of hand the Lord brought Israel out of Egypt (xiii; 3, 9, 14, 16). and He said that He would bring them into the promised land (xiii. 5, 11). Having brought them out. He led them and went before them in a pillar of cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night to lead them the way and to give them light (xill, 17, 18, 21, 22). Whatever their misconduct. He never took it away, and this pillar was everything to them-their guide, their shelter from the burning sun, their light, their oracle, their protection-all that they needed-but to enjoy it to the full they must be wholly submissive and obedient (Isa. l. 19).

The adversary sees that he can still use Pharach and so stire him to pursue Israel, which be does with all his God who had just wrought such a miracle for them. Yet to such murmurers Moses has from God a "Fear ye not. Stand still and see the salvation of the Lord, which He will show to you today. • • • The Lord shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace" (verses 13, Compelling Heinze to Take His Title 14). Compare Deut, 31, 8, 4; II Chron. xx. 15, 17; Isa. xll, 10-14.

simple, childlike trust in Him!

One of the Lord's questions to Moses at the burning bush was, "What is that this rod in thine hand, wherewith thou boundaries of his property. shalt do signs" (iv, 2, 17). Now He says. "Lift thou up thy rod and stretch out thine hand over the sea and divide It" (verse 16). Thus He graciously takes what we have and makes His power manifest through it and us. Think of the lad's five loaves and Dorcas' needle and just hand over to Him whatever you have as unreservedly as will do (Jer. xxxill, 3).

May Open Sale to All Canada Regina At a meeting of the executive of the Saskatchewan Stock

Breeders' association, held in the offices of the department of agriculture, Robert Stinton, president of the association, and Paul Bredt were appointed delegates to confer with delegates from the Stock Breeders' associations of Manitoba and Alberta with regard to the advisability or otherwise of throwing the annual bull sale open to entries from any part of Canada. The proposed con-ference will probably take place during the Regina fair in August. At the same meeting the secretary-treasurer, James Murray, tendered his resignation, having accepted the position of superintendent of the experimental farm at Brandon.

Mr. Murray's report showed the association to be in a flourishing condition, both financially and otherwise. J. Bracken, who succeeds Mr. Murray as superintendent of fairs and institutes for the province, has also been appointed to succeed him as secretary-treasurer of the Stock Breeders' association. It was further decided to invite Dr. Rutherford, Dominion live stock commissioner, to attend the proposed conference of delegates from the three prairie provinces above named or to send a representative.

British Sealer Seized

Washington-The secretary of the treasury has received a telegram from Captain Ainsworth, of the revenue cutter Rush, stating that he had seized the British sealing schooner Charlotte G. Cox, which was found illegally catching seals in Fairweather grounds, off Alaska. The Cox, it is said, evidently was taking seals during the closed season, within the area of the award in violation of the articles of the tribunal of arbitration agreed to by the governments of Great Britain and the United States. She had 77 fur sealcharlots and horsemen and army, and skins on board. ### Crop Possibilities

Mr. James Murray, the new superintendent of the Dominion less alarm. The wheat in many Experimental Farm at Brandon, districts has been sown for over a is of the opinion that there is wardness of the seeding season, the production of a large wheat Canada this year. He says:

"The tardiness of the spring has unfortunately given rise to all sorts of surmises regarding the probabilities of a good wheat crop. While it must be admitted that there is ground for some misgiving, it would appear that alto gether too much prominence has been accorded to the possibilities of a short crop and entirely too little to the rational consideration of conditions as they exist in comparison with those of previous years. During the past winter we had an unusually heavy snowfail a condition that in itself was any thing but detrimental.

The month of April was th coldest that had been experienced for many years, the snow was late in going and it was impossible to go on the land as early as was ordinarily the case. At present, it is true, there is little sign of growth on our trees and the grass is not nearly so forward as in an average year. Throughout May the temperature has not been favorable for rapid growth; in fact, there have been few nights in which the thermometer has not straining influence over Imperialregistered frost. In spite of these conditions there is ample reason to look forward to the harvesting is also indebted to this subsidized of a good crop.

It is true that most of the wheat in Manitoba and Saskatchewan has been sown at a later date than usual this year, but it has been sown for the most part in soil well prepared. Furthermore, the seed sown this year has been of uniformly better quality than in many previous years. This is largely due to the campaign conducted during the past few years in favor of better seed, and to the good average quality of the wheat crop last year. ## A Service of Praise

A good many newspaper men and some other taxpayers have been curious to know what value the country gets for the subsidy paid by the Government to the Canadian Associated Press, an organization, supposed to cable news from England to Canada. A majority of the Canadian papers refuse to take this service, and those which do use it have made a good deal of complaint. But the subsidized Association has during the last few weeks made good its claim for the continued payment of the Government allowance. Its despatches have given glowing accounts of Sir Wilfred Laurier's performances. They have told us that he was the central figure of the Imperal Council. The longest despatch of the season was the one which pictured in glowing terms the wonderful prestige of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and told how ha exercised a controlling and reist agitators on one side and Little Englanders on the other. Shaved the Statue. Near the entrance of beautiful Oak Hill cemetery, Georgetown, where repower the dust of James G. Blaine, Edwin M. Stanton and other great Americans, stands a fine statue of John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home." The bringing home of the remains of this famous American who died at his post in Africa generations ago when he was serving there as United States consul was the occasion of a great national function many Tears ago.

The late William Corcoran, the Washington banker and philanthropist, defrayed all of the expenses and also paid for the monument and statue of Payne which mark his resting place in Oak Hill. The sculptor who executed the life size statue had palmed off on him as a picture of John Howard Payme the photograph of a man whose face was completely covered with a inzuriant growth of whiskers. Accordingly he faithfully reproduced the whichers is marble. Soon after the statue was set up in Oak Hill it was discovered that John Howard Payne had never worn a beard.

The sculptor, enraged and undaunted, proceeded forthwith to chisel the whisters of the marble image of the immortal author of "Home, Sweet Home." so that today the visitor to Georgetown's historic old cemetery bebolds the classic face in marble of John Howard Payne sans whiskers except for a mustache.—Washington Herand the second second second

The books and eyes should be sewed in place with a space of one and a half inches apart, with hooks ou right side, eyes on the opposite side.

The trouble with the necks of blouses is caused by two mistakes of most frequent occurrence. The space between the shoulder seams in the back is too while the teeth cover and stir the narrow. That causes hump. The neck should be divided into three equal por tions, back and two fronts. Shoulder seams must always be straight at the neckband and alterations made toward back or front at the armbole.

The wrinkles around the neck will be quite done away with if the neckband is made longer than the neck of the blouse, the latter being "nicked" here and there as it is sewed on. This is a simple remedy, but most complete.

The harrow besewith illustrated and originally described by a New Jersey farmer in an exchange is eight lest long by four lest wide, with eight teeth in each beam. The teeth should be of five-eighths inch steel and put through not more than two inches. This makes a fine comb harrow which cuts all the top and does

This makes the harrow flexible. By withdrawing the inch rod and unhooking from the pulling bar it can be sheltered in very small space. A boy can handle it. The harrow is very easy to draw. The beams, being near the ground, act as levelers.

DAIRY FARMING.

It Furnishes a Harvest That Lasts All the Year.

Dairy farming, which has been happily designated "the harvest that lasts all the year," enters into the field of farming pursuit, since the dairy farmer furnishes product. It enters both into live stock raising and general farming and for the greatest success demands that those who follow it shall have a thorough as well as practical knowledge of the breeding and raising of animals, no less than One cupful of sugar, half a cupful of the planting, cultivating and harvest-

An Important Advantage. Whole nations, as Denmark and York and Wisconsin, have been made prosperous by attention to dairy eggs, one yolk and the grated rind of a ter, cheese and milk of high quality; says Inland Farmer. Many farmers have become wealthy in land and money by the pursuit of dairying. Add alternately the milk and pre, farming also has this important adat it restores fertility to out on a floured board a quarter of an the land, while other systems of cropto be sold.

Some Hardships.

There are, of course, hardships conpected with dairy farming and the handling of cows, and often the shipping of the milk or cream and the profitable marketing of the same are attended with difficulty, but were this not the case it would be different from most other pursuits of life and would attract many from them.

Rheumatism In Pigs. Articular and muscular rheumatism are so frequently associated in pigs that it is best to discuss them together. Although hogs live under favorable conditions for the development of rheumatism, they do not often have the disease. This is probably due to the presence of subcutana eous fat. This disease is attributed to damp pens and exposure, but it may occur to pigs when well managed. Overfeeding may also cause it. The muscles and joints may both be involved and the symptoms be quite' marked. There may be a fever, loss of appetite and a general lack of condition. If the muscles of the back are involved it is arched and very tender on manipulation. Stiffness in the gait is present, especially if the quarters are involved. Preventive treatment is very important. It means the provision of dry comfortable quarters and the avoidance of exposure. The animals should be given sloppy food; also salicylate of sods in twenty to forty grain doses. Recovery occurs in two or three weeks unless the disease becomes chronic.

Advantages of Box Stalls.

Fore leg over the halter, head under the manger, standing with fore feet in the manger, lying in the gangway with head outstretched and rigid from the halter strap, sleeping standing through fear of lying down-these are some of the evils that are obviated by the adoption of the box stall.

When free and in his natural state the horse always stands while at rest with the fore feet on a lower plane than the hind feet, thus relieving the strain upon the back sinews of the fore legs, nor is this all the relief secured, for the bones, of the feet and the joints are in a more natural glass, which makes it dull and injures position; hence the flooring of all stalls should slope forward instead of backward. True, this has its drawbacks regarding drainage, but this is only another argument in favor of the box stall.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Treatment For Thrush.

Thrush is a disease of the frog of the foot of horses and mules and is characterized by a very offensive discharge from the clefts of the frog. It is caused notably by bad shoeine whereby the frog is prevented from coming in contact with the ground but it may also be caused by an animal standing in a dirty stable Treat as follows: Clean out the foot well and if lame put the foot in a poultice for several days, changing every Linseed meal poultice is the best, but a bran or mashed turnip (boiled) will do. w the Highways Can Be Improve

At Smell Expense. In writing of the read drag in Motor News D. C. Wing of Missouri says: It takes a courageous man to start othing now in a farming commu nity."As a class we farmers resist inpovations almost to the extent of making ourselves abourd in the eyes of an intelligent public. It is surprising with what bulldog tenacity we hang to traditions, old methods and scrub stock. But the drag is sweeping us toward a brighter day.

Tragged after each rain, when the mud-works nicely and does not stick to the drag, a road will acquire during the season such a thick, compact "hide" that it will turn water, resist the action of frost and remain hard and smooth throughout the year. The more it is traveled the better it will be, provided it is dragged after each rain. Every time the dust paste is spread over the surface and then beaten down and hardened the road is improved. The writer has a piece of road that has been dragged for two years. Its shell is so thick and hard that it can scarcely be cut with an axe.

You can wager that the bottom will not fall out of this road, no matter how wet the spring may be. It was tested the last spring by weeks of rainy weather, but it held its own. Other roads were impassable. Their bottoms fell out, and they would mire man or beast. Instead of turning the water, they absorbed it.

A good earth road must be hard smooth and oval or convex. A road acteristics and retain them if it is origin of our modern churning process. dragged after each rain. By riding amount of earth moved toward the centre. The first applications of the drag will merely knock off the rough manufacturing more than any other, edges, fill in the ruts and provide for more effective work in the future.

> The Hereford. Among beef cattle at the present time the Hereford is most firmly established as a profitable feeder. a "rustler" on the ranges it has no superior and no steers will respond quicker to care and good stall feeding than those of this famous breed.

A TYPICAL MERSPORD BRIFER-A ROYAL SEOW WITHER.

Of late years a hornless variety has been introduced and efforts are now being made to fix the type; should this be successful the Hereford will and even more admirers than it has to-day. According to the American herd books there are over 200,000 Herefords now registered, which places this breed second only to the iavorite Shorthorns.

Care of Work Horses.

Many persons after driving their leams in the slush and mud think if they dash a few pails of water over the horses' limbs upon returning they have left the poor brutes in the best possible condition until morning. The lact is it would be far better to turn the animals into the stable and leave them, mud and all, until their legs are fully, dry. There would be less danger of scratches, mud fevers and grease heels than by the plan of washing. If the legs are washed they should be rubbed quite dry, which is no easy task. If left partially dry the most serious consequences are likely to follow. When a team is left with the hair partially dry a chill is sure to ensue. It is not unlikely the animals, especially if exhausted, will be found the next morning stiff, with the limbs swollen, since the exhaustion of the system prevents healthy reaction at the swollen extremities.—Agricultural Epitomist.

Testing Seed Corn.

There are many devices for testing the germinating power of seed corn. In principle they are all the same and as in most other things, the simplest is as good as any.

In order to germinate, seed must have moisture, air and heat, and any device which supplies these conditions to the best advantage will answer a farmer's purpose.

A good method to adopt is to take an ordinary dinner plate, with double fold of moistened finnel, between which the kernels can be laid: cover this with another plate to prevent too rapid drying. This tester should be kept in a room in which the temperature ranges about seventy degrees. All kernels which fail to send out vigorous root and stem sprouts within five days should be considered as too weak to germinate properly under field conditions, and if more than five per cent, of the seed fails to germinate within the five days the bulk of the seed is likely to prove unsatisfactory.

Farming By Electricity.

Some of the enterprising farmers of Davidson and Turner counties, South Dakota, are forming an association for the purpose of introducing electricity in the farming communities. They expect to utilize electricity in plowing and cultivating the soil, harvosting the crops, running farm mahinery and lighting the homes of the eople. It will be applied to the dairies, creameries and other local industries. Power is to be put in the home for the purpose of running sewing achinery, laundry appliances and verything requiring physical labor.

Pleasing Scheme of Applying Strips of Drawn Thread Work to Cuchien Covers and Other Things-How the Work May Be Dena.

Those who like doing rather a coarse style of needlework will find the design of conventional carnations here libustrated very useful. It is designed for worsted work, the revival of which is so popular now, and might be done on a well woven, rather coarse holland. For the darkest parts black or very dark brown should be used, and the medium tones should be kept strictly as medium tones, only there might be

For instance, the shaded part on the stalks, calvace and leaves could be worked in a green that on the Sowers and buds in red and blue not that one has heard of a blue carnation, but the design is quite conventional. The stitching on these parts might be "long and short." keeping a fairly straight edge. The black or dark brown should be in crewel stitch and the inclosed light spec left plain. The border must have the same coloring as the flowers. A stiff mount is necessary for work of this style. The surrounding cord should repeat the medium toned colors.

One of the illustrations shows

capital dest for applying stripe of drawn thread work to cushion covers. table centers, etc., so that they are easily detachable, and the ribbons run through them can be changed as often as may be wished. The strips are cut twice the width of the drawn thread design, which is worked so as to leave the same amount of plain linen above and below it. The plain edges are turned down and run together at the back of the work, thus forming a tubular strip through which the colored ribbon is run. The width, of course, varies according to the object it is intended to ornament. Odd strips of linen, so often left over from other work, can be utilized in this way, and they may be either white or colored, while strips of white linen can be applied to a colored ground, and vice versa, or the background and its ornamentation may be made to match. The chief advantage of this device is the ease with which the ribbon can be changed, so that any color can be used in order to harmonise with any scheme of decoration. Another recommendation is the simplicity with which the linen strips can be washed. as they need be only very lightly joined together at the back and thus easily undone. If further ornamentation should be desired, a wider margin could be left on each side of the drawn work and this margin featherstitched.

GARRITURE POR CORRIGH COVER. The strips can be arranged in various ways. They might be placed diagonally on the cushion square to form a lossage or to cross at the corners after the manner of the old Oxford frame. In the latter case a feature could be made of the crossing (in the drawn thread pattern). They could be adapted to a circular background by using three stripe only in triangle form. An open design about be used for the drawn thread, so as to show the ribbon underneath.

tin Luther Boid.

The fact that the daily use of flowers on the bome table has grown to be almost universal among some classes of the American people argues well for their appreciation of the aesthetic and the artistic in combination with the more material things of life. Flowers have a refining influence, and it is wellto use them where this infinence will be exerted over the children most effectively, and at no place about the house do they seem to come into closer companionship with them than at the table.

Martin Luther knew whereof he spoke when he said that a plant in the window was powerful enough sometimes to keep the devil outside. Let the child come to the breakfast table to find himself face to face with a flower or a bit of "green thing growing," and he will have a pleasant memory of the morning meal to carry him throughout the day.

The housewife who neglects to make use of flowers in the administration of the affairs of the home overlooks a Dotent factor for good. Make it a rule always to have something on the table besides fine china and silver and cut glass to brighten it and make it more attractive than these things can. A' few flowers will make the table of the poor man pleasanter than the rich man's is without them.

Good Looks in the Kitchen. "I'm pever going to marry until I can afford to keep my wife out of the kitchen," said a bachelor the other day. "because as soon as a woman does housework she loses her good looks."

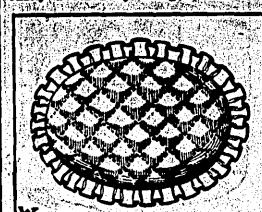

There is a vestige of truth in the above statement, but there are countless little ways in which you can preserve your beauty even while doing the hardest part of the housework with your own hands.

Do you sit as much as possible at your work? The woman who stands to polish silver or to peel the potatoes is not deserving of sympathy when her feet ache.

When ironing, stand on a soft, thick rug and you will notice that your feet do not become nearly so quickly tired. Keep your hands out of hot water. This can and must be done. It is for this that the dish mop and the rubber gloves were invented, and you can take advantage of them at a very small cost. Do not plunge your hands recklessly into the dishwater. Hours each day spent in hot water will cause them to become swollen and red.

For the Teapet

Eevery one who has ever poured out tes knows how painful it is to catch hold suddenly of a very hot teapot handle, an experience which may sometimes result in the dropping of the teapot and the breaking of a cup and saucer. This discomfort can be casily avoided by paing a peat little handle holder of the kind shown in the accompanying sketch. It can be made in spare moments from almost any odd remnant of material and may be circular, square or oval in shape, but perhaps the latter is the most useful and convenient. Two pieces of material should be cut out in the shape required and, after having been padded, should be sewn together and quilted. A frill of pretty; colored ribbon may then be attached all round the edge to finish it off. To Preserve Flowers.

Flowers can be preserved for several months by dipping them carefully as soon as gathered in perfectly limpid gum water. After allowing them to drain for a few minutes arrange them in a vase. The gum forms a complete coating on the stems and keeps their form and color long after they have become dry. Many people like to have bunches of bright colored autumn leaves in their rooms. They are easily preserved so as not to decay under the influence of the air in the following simple manner: Melt some spermaceti in a tin or earthenware bowl and when it is liquid, but not too hot dip in the leaves. Then lay them out on a smooth surface to dry. The leaves must be thoroughly coated, but not too thickly.

Torn Wall Paper.

When a hole has been made in the wall paper in moving a piece of furniture, if one has no paper like the one on the wall a judicious use of water colors will work wonders. The torn paper should be drut straightened as neatly as possible and gived down. Then touch up the vacant spaces and the seams with paints the color of the paper at that place, says Home Chat. The break will be almost invisible if the water colors are used carefully. Tiny tubes of water color paints can be bought at any artists' supplies shop.

As the sub there descends neares and nearer to the borison and is immensely enlarged and flaming, it suddealy becomes for an instant a brilliantly green color, and immediately a series of green rays suffuses the sky in many directions, well nigh to the senith. The same phenomenon appears at suprise, but to a smaller extent. Sometimes, just as the last part of the sun's disk vanishes, its color changes from green to bive. and so also after it has disappeared the sky near the horizon often is green, while toward the senith It is blue.

This was alloded to in Egyptian writings. Day was the emblem of life and night that of death, and the nocturnal sun, being identified with Osiria, thus rendered Osiris king of the dead. The setting our was green; therefore Osiris, as the nocturnal delty of the dead, was painted green. The splendid coffins of the high priests of Ammon frequently depict the green sun, and the funeral deities are all colored green.

There are innumerable instances in the Egyptian relics of representations relative to death being colored green. The practice undoubtedly arose from the green tinte of sunrice and sunset. The green oun disk is referred to 5,000 years ago in Egypt. This is the earliest known bumen record of an actrenemical Shenomenou.

Computerry Voting in Practice Those who hold that the one remedy for graft and bossism is to make voting compulsory will be interested in the working of such a law in Austria. In Vienna and Lower Austria there were 50,000 who failed to record their votes at the recent election, and it is expected that they will be prosecuted and fined. But it is the second election under the new law that must test its efficacy. The purpose of such a law is not to make things uncomfortable for a great many people, nor to punish offenders against the state, but simply to make the ballot representative of the entire class entrusted with it. As to the proportion of wisdom and virtue among tse stay-at-homes there is room, of course, for a difference of opinion, but there can be no doubt that a large number of people of ability are inclined to slight a duty in which the individual counts for so little. Their private affairs are on a larger scale, and it is natural a Statman's Story of the Antics of for them to feel that one vote more or less is a small matter. Looking toward a potato field on the been able to do any good for, it slope of the rising ground to the east truly dees even more than you claim of the town, a field which he was able for it. For my own part I would not to point out from the boat, he saw issuing from the liss a troop of little people, one being distinctly tailer than the rest. At first they seemed rather blurred, then took distinct shapes and began to play the national game of burley among the bare potato rigs. He called Sullivan's attention to them, but for some time his friend could not see them, then said he could, and they watched the game together for a time. Then the sun went in, and the fairles, moving toward the line, as if returning to it, vanished. Lieses are rough places, sometimes hillocks, sometimes depressions, often bushy, but never cultivated. I have been told they are left as doorways for the fairles when visiting the earth's surface."

HUNTING MAHOGANY.

It Takes an Experienced Weedeman to Locate the Trees.

Mahogany trees do not grow in clusthe top of the fallest tree and surveys the surrounding country. The mahogany has a peculiar foliage, and his practiced eye soon detects the trees within sight.

The axmen follow the hunter, and then come the sawyers and bewers. a large mahogany taking two men a full which project from the trunk at its base, and scaffolds must be erected so that the tree can be cut off above the spurs. This leaves a stump ten to fifteen feet high, which is sheer waste. as the stump really contains the best lumber.

The hunter has nothing to do with the work of cutting or removing the tree, his duty being simply to locate it. If he is clever and energetic, his remuneration may amount to $500 or $1,000 a month, but he may travel weeks at a time without detecting a tree, and as he is generally paid by results his earnings are rather precari-

Not Æsop's Day.

West Point's aim is to teach men to meet any situation with the best there is in them. When General Custer was a cadet, he ventured into the French section room without having so much as looked at the day's lesson. The section had been engaged in the translation of Æsop's fables from French to English, but on this particular day the task consisted of a page of history written in French. Cadet Custer was given the book and very bravely dashed into the translation of this sentence: "Leopold, duc d'Autriche, se mettit sur les plaines de Silesie." But appeal to him, for without hesitation

"The leopard, the duck and the ostrich met upon the plains of Silesia."

Seme Very Old Trees.

Brazilian cocoanut paims live for 600 to 700 years, and the Arabs assert. that the date paim frequently reaches the age of 200 to 300 years. Wallan's oak, near Paisley, Scotland, is known to be over 700 years old, and there are eight olive trees on the Mount of Olives, near Jerusalem, which are known to have been flourishing in 1009. The yews at Fountain abbey, Yorkshire, were old trees when, in 1132, the abbey was built, and a redwood in Mariposa grove, California, is a manifold centenarian. Baobab trees of Africa have been computed to be over 5,000 years old, and the deciduous cypress at Chapultepec is considered to be of a still greater age.

"What can Mitch do?" repeated Frank Clark, of this city. "Everything but talk, and to me he talks a language that is intelligible."

Mitch is a bull terrier and his owner is a jeweler. Mr. Clark raised the dog and taught him many of his tricks.

Mr. Clark says Mitch opens doors, pulls down the shades in his master's house in the evening without being ordered to, smokes cigars, drinks whiskey, and bowls. Mr. Clark belongs to a lodge of Elks, and Mitch is as good an Elk as any of the order. At 11 o'clock be drinks to the departed and then strolls home. When his master visits a bowling ally he joins in the game, pushing the balls along the alley with his nose and veering into the gutter when the ball has sufficient speed to make a strike or spare. ## Pictures of the month

The June "Canadian Pictorial is full of variety and of greater general interest than any yet issued. The cover shows the massive monument unveiled in Montreal on May 24, to Lord Strathcona and the Canadians who lost their lives in South Airica during the war. It is full of life and vigor, and will rank among the great monuments of the country. The Canadian public man of the month is the Hon. some first-class snapshots of the colonial premiers in England, in which Laurier and Botha figure largely. By way of contrast to the dignified Boer Premier, who now wears frock cont and silk but, is given a picture showing the general during the war in the rough and ready dress of a soldier on the yeldt. One of the most striking pictures shows a London crowd massed on one of the great squares at an open-air meeting. The sea of upturned faces is worth studying. Among the other notable pictures are: Spring on Mount Royal, the New York Zoo, a model hunter's camp, the Cambridge bout crew, Dr. Torrey, the famous evangelist; the Suffragettes' and the London police; the famine in China, and a new London bridge. The women's department, which includes a picture of Mrs. Charles Fitzpatrick, consists of timely fashion articles, and illustrations and suggestions of interest to every household, including hints on chafing dish cookery.
